Council hears streaking complaints

By Dan Haar
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Carbondale ministers, backed by an applauding crowd, at the Monday night City Council meeting denounced the wave of streakers which blocked South Illinois Avenue Friday night.

A crowd of about 80 citizens attended the meeting, most of whom objected to the recent occurrences of streaking. The most vocal criticism was aimed at Friday night's occurrence when about 4,000 students gathered downtown to watch the streakers.

As more and more students filled the streets, the nude streakers slowed their pace, with many casually walking along.

Many of the ministers blasted the action of the Carbondale Police Department who did not attempt to make any arrests but tried to keep the crowd under control.

The council members and the majority of ministers and citizens who spoke out at the meeting commended Police Chief Joe Dakin for his handling of the situation, citing the lack of any major damage.

Most of the complaints centered around what the city was planning to do to prevent another occurrence in the future.

Rev. John Hartley of the First Church of God, said he was asking what the churches in Carbondale could do as a group to prevent such incidents.

The Rev. Mr. Hartley also asked that if more policemen are needed to prevent streaking then they should be used.

Dakin answered Hartley that he has planned to have a large number of police on hand in case of another incident. He said the police force was "overwhelmed" Friday night but now they would be prepared for it.

"I intend to keep the streets opened," Dakin said. He added that he was not going to promise to go into a crowd and make arrests and start trouble.

Dakin remarked that a considerable part of the crowd Friday night was made up of townspeople, most of them middle-aged, and some with children on their shoulders to see the spectacle.

Dakin said one thing the churches can do is keep their congregation off the streets when such incidents occur.

Rev. Walter Bowie Jr., also speaking for the group churches, said he wanted to express moral outrage at what is going on. He criticized the news media for exploiting the incidents on the front pages.

Rev. Willie Mack called for the police to use stronger measures in dealing with the streakers. "It looks like the law has turned its back," he said.

"First it was hot pants, then it was no bra and now it's no pants. I think we've let this go too much," he said.

Father James Genesio of St. Francis Catholic Church said he deplored the streaking as much as the townspeople did but he agreed with the police action. He warned that strict enforcement could have led to more unlawfulness.

Councilman Hans Fischer proposed that City Manager Carroll Fry and the city staff be charged with drawing up a contingency plan to cope with similar situations.

Mayor Neal Eckert observed that most of the people who went downtown went to have fun, "maybe too much fun." He emphasized that there was not a bad atmosphere Friday night.

Eckert noted that major contractors in the area have been indicted for fraud but the ministers have not spoken out against this. He also said that children witness murder and violence on television and parents do little to prevent it.

Only when people run down a street naked "making fools of themselves" does the city get a reaction. "Just look at this," Eckert said referring to the large crowd. Eckert said he will see that the streets remain opened.

Councilwoman Helen Westberg approved Fischer's proposal of a contingency plan. She said such situations make it mandatory for the city to be prepared to handle them.

Councilman Archie Jones put the responsibility on the people who he said must regulate morality. He said people must teach the children morality.

Orescanin gets support to retain present position

By David C. Miller Jr.
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

About 60 signatures of local citizens were on a letter to the Board of Trustees Saturday, pledging support to Dan Orescanin, executive vice president and treasurer.

More signatures on similar letters are on the way to the Board this week, said Ellis Mitchell, owner of Universal Stearns, Inc., Monday. Orescanin requested reassignment to a teaching position Feb. 28, following disclosure of "irregularities" in his handling of about $3,600 from restricted University funds.

The board must approve the resignation and reassignment, and that, Mitchell said, is the area citizens are trying to prevent.

"The central idea behind the letter is that we wish to see the (SIU President David) Derge administration retained," Mitchell explained, adding the letters request the board's denial of Orescanin's job change request.

"We're asking people from various walks of life to explain how (they) feel about it," Mitchell said, pointing out the letters are not petitions. While businessmen and area professional men are well-represented, he said, the signatures have not been sought from "any specific group."

The University and the area suffer from the adverse publicity about the $3,600, Mitchell said, and some show of area confidence in the SIU administration is needed. The letter idea came from an individual, he added, but declined to name him.

Orescanin said Monday he is pleased with the support, but added the letter movement was not started by him.

"I'm not talking to them about it," Orescanin said. "Whatever they're

Audit completed at Trustees' meeting

By Terry Martin
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The audit of University accounts with irregularities of at least $3,600 was completed about five minutes into the SIU Board of Trustees' 7½-hour closed special session Saturday. Clifford Burger, board financial officer said Monday.

The special meeting was called to review the irregularities in the expenditure from restricted funds, the Daily Egyptian learned Monday.

Burger was the only SIU or board official contacted who did not take a "no comment" approach to the matter.

After Saturday's marathon meeting, Chairman Ivan A. Elliott Jr. announced the board would meet in executive session at 6 p.m. Wednesday and 9 a.m. Thursday before the scheduled 11 a.m. Thursday open meeting.

"That's the only comment we have," Elliott said.

Burger began the audit on March 1 after the Feb. 28 announcement that Danilo Orescanin, executive vice president and treasurer had resigned from his administrative post. That same day, SIU President David R. Derge and Elliott announced there were irregularities in Orescanin's handling of at least $3,600.

Derge said the money was charged to the President's Official Functions Account (POFA) but should have been charged to a different account of the SIU Foundation.

He would not say what the money was spent for but James Brown, chief of board staff, said it was his impression the money was used for the purchase of alcoholic beverages for official University entertaining functions.

"Some loose ends had to be tied up," Burger said. "But that doesn't mean they won't want more at another meeting."

Burger said he had no idea when the findings of the audit would be released to the press but suspected that it would be part of an overall release possibly at Thursday's open meeting.

During the closed session, attended by all the current board members, at least 12 of SIU's top officials waited outside the closed doors or were called inside the

Petty fight triggers incident between students at U-Park

By David Kornblith
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

About 100 blacks and as many whites clashed Sunday night in the University Park area of Grinnell, Mae Smith and Schneider Halls, SIU police reported Monday.

Seven persons were injured in the fighting. They were taken to Doctors Memorial Hospital, treated and released.

Police said an earlier fight, involving a stabbing, triggered the incident. They added that they heard a black person yell at the night fight that the trouble was in response to a black man getting stabbed early Sunday.

The first incident happened about 4 a.m., police said. Three black students and three white non-students have been charged with disorderly conduct in connection with the incident.

Police said the three white males involved entered Neely Hall to use the phone. A witness reportedly said the whites tried to force their way into the dorm. The three were told by a black man on duty at the desk that they would have to use the outside phone, police said.

Police said when the whites left the building they were followed by the black man at the desk and two other blacks. Once they were outside, fighting ensued, police said. Two whites and a black were reported slashed in the fight.

The three white men have been identified as William J. Landgraf and Michael J. Kroll, both 19, and from Chicago, Richard A. Licker, 20, of Evergreen Park. Police said Landgraf was cut about the face and Kroll was stabbed through the hand.

The black men involved were Anthony W. Frazier, 25, of 1214 Neely Hall, who was at the desk; Warner Baxter of 600 E. Main St. and Dennis C. Lenoir, 19, of 1115 Schneider Hall. Frazier was cut on the hand and forearm, police reported.

Sunday night, police were called to investigate an incident outside Mae Smith. When they arrived, they were told that there was fighting going on inside Grinnell Hall.

At Grinnell, police separated large groups of scrapping black and whites, they said. Once the groups were separated, four persons were discovered injured and ambulances were called.

Witnesses at Grinnell said the trouble began during a movie.

Security police reported they cleared the building and the fighting began outside. The groups were separated outside and told to go to opposite sides of the street.

The separated groups started moving in the direction of Schneider, shouting obscenities all the while, police said. Crowds rambled to the vicinity of Neely and Allen halls where police intervened again.

Nobody has been charged with any crime, Tom Leffler, chief of the Security Office, said Monday. The state's attorney was reviewing the case to determine if there was enough evidence to charge anyone.

The persons treated and released from Doctors Memorial Hospital were: Robert Schoehoff, 18, of 437 Schneider Hall; Joan Kroll, 18, of 532 Mae Smith; Mary Murphy, 19, of 333 Mae Smith; Robert Wagner, 19, of 1307 Schneider; George Martin, 19, of 220 Boomer II; Grady Shelton, 20, of 126 Allen II, and Charles Lingentel, 819 Schneider Hall.

Leffler said he was beefing up patrols in the area Monday night.

SIU football player drowns in Campus Lake Saturday

An SIU football player drowned Saturday afternoon at Lake-on-the-Campus.

Robert Beimal, 19, a resident of Brown Hall at Thompson Point drowned after an attempt to swim across the north end of the lake failed.

Two friends reported that Beimal had eaten lunch prior to the drowning, but still decided to go swimming.

The 230-pound freshman from Lombard jumped into the water, estimated depth of 20 feet, and began struggling. Two of his friends at the scene made an attempt at a rescue, but it was to no avail.

The body was pulled from the water about 2:35 p.m. and taken to the Small Group Housing side of the lake. The body was taken in a Carbondale Fire Department emergency vehicle.

Most of the 200 students keeping a vigil around the lake began to disperse. A dozen or so team members lingered a while longer before walking away.

Beimal is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Beimal of 256 Harding St., Lombard.

The funeral for Beimal will be at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday at the Sacred Heart Catholic Church in Lombard.

Burial will be in the Queen of Heaven Cemetery in Hillside. A rosary will be Student Center's Vermillion Room. No SIU-E administrators attended the meeting.

T. Richard Mager, vice president for development and services; Keith Leasure, vice president for academic affairs and provost; Hollis Merritt, assistant to the president; and John Huffman, legal counsel were all called individually before the board.

All four men met with Elliott in Carmi a week ago. Derge and Orescanin did not attend that meeting. Two security police along with Chief Tom Leffler stood in front of the double doors and only allowed board members or those called before them inside. Student Center Director Clarence Dougherty and James Sheppard, assistant director also stood in the hallway most of the time.

Orescanin and Derge both came by themselves and were later joined by their wives but neither was called individually by the board.

Brown, C. Richard Grunly, legal counsel for the board; Warren Buffum, budget director; and Dale Knight, controller and acting vice president for administration and campus treasurer all waited outside the meeting room.

Dean of Students Bruce Swinburne and former SIU-C Student Trustee Matthew Rich also showed up but left shortly after they came. Don Hecke, director of communications and Charles Butler, trustee administrative aide stayed throughout the marathon meeting.

One of the River Rooms was set aside for the press but frequented by many others from time to time. Copies of the day's Daily Egyptian and St. Louis Globe Democrat were strewn all over the long table from the several individuals who kept reading for lack of other things to do.

About 4 p.m., in the press room, Derge suddenly stood up and sighed: "I've read every letter on every page of every paper in here." He then left the room.

After the meeting, Elliott said there have been longer ones for the board. He said they occurred over the University House matter and the retirement of former president Delyte W. Morris.

Heavy rains douse lower Mississippi; Nebraska gets snow

Heavy rains doused the lower Mississippi Valley Monday and one foot of snow plastered the Nebraska Panhandle.

Scottsbluff, Neb., had 12 inches of snow in an 18-hour period. Nearly 2 inches of rain pelted Eldorado, Ark. in six hours and about 1½ inches fell at Monroe, La.

The rain system moved into the Ohio Valley and drifted eastward.

Heavy snow warnings were posted for north-central South Dakota with more than 4 inches expected.

Rain with snow in the mountains persisted from Oregon to central California. There was some rain in the mid-Atlantic Coast states. Light rain or drizzle was common from northeastern Kansas and eastern Nebraska into Illinois.

Fair skies were restricted to the Northeast, the Rockies and from western Texas to Southern California.

Pastors upset by streakers, police control

By Brenda Penland
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

"People who streak should be run out of town on a rail," Rev. Willie H. Mack, pastor of the New Zion Baptist Church, said Monday. "And if the mayor and police sit back and don't move a finger, they should be at the head of the pole."

The Rev. Mr. Mack said the police encouraged the streaking Friday by detouring traffic around the streakers. Police closed off South Illinois Avenue between Walnut and College Streets.

"They (the police) gave these people that section of town and said the sky's the limit," he said. "And the sky was the limit, too," he said.

The Ministerial Conference of Carbondale and Vinctivity, which the Rev. Mr. Mack is president, issued a statement Monday criticizing the police for not taking action against streakers.

The statement said in part: "We are appalled by the fact that those in authority did nothing and some excused themselves by suggesting that this was better than throwing rocks and breaking windows."

The Rev. Mr. Mack said 100 per cent of the 23 ministers in the Ministerial Conference agreed with the statement.

He said he felt the police were wrong. They should have dispersed the crowd by threatening to arrest those who wouldn't leave, he said. He recommended that police use a loud speaker to inform streakers they were breaking the law.

Thomas L. Leffler, Chief of SIU security police, said no current laws cover streaking. He said the police can't charge streakers with disorderly conduct or indecent exposure.

Leffler said the Illinois General Assembly may have to pass a new law in order to stop streaking.

Carbondale Police Chief Joe Dakin said the police didn't remove streakers from the crowd Friday night for fear of a recurrence of the May 1970 riots.

"People walked down the street buck naked and the police said don't bother them because it might start a riot," the Rev. Mr. Mack said. "Well, if the law isn't enforced, then it should be abolished. If the police close their eyes on this type of thing, we will eventually have rocks thrown and open sex right on the sidewalk."

The statement which was issued by the Ministerial Conference referred to this when it said: "A few years ago it was hot pants, then no bra, now it's no pants at all. Where will it end? No doubt next year we will have people fornicating in the streets."

The Rev. Mr. Mack and the statement by the Ministerial Conference criticized the media for its coverage of the streaking.

The statement said: "We deplore the latest campus craze of streaking and more so, the fact that the news media dignified such actions by giving it front page coverage complete with photos."

"I think the way the news media wrote it up encouraged it," the Rev. Mr. Mack said. "It encouraged someone else to get their name and picture in the paper. It's one thing to tell about a thing, but to actually put pictures in it is something else."

He also blamed the media for people staging streaking in advance in order to have their picture taken.

The Rev. Mr. Mack also criticized the Carbondale citizens who went downtown to watch the streakers.

Father James Genesio, a member of the Carbondale Catholic Team Ministry, said he thought the police took the correct action Friday.

"I wish they could do something about it, but I think they made the correct judgement," he said.

He said he doesn't get too excited about streaking because he thinks it's just a fad. In reference to the streaking in front of Morris Library Thursday, he said, he "laughs that kind of thing off."

Student Government elections begin with 13 vying for post of president

By Debby Ratermann
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Petitions are in and the race is on for the April 17 and 18 Student Government elections. Thirteen students have filed for student body president and nine for vice president, while 23 students are running for 20 of the 36 Student Senate seats.

Six students are candidates for student trustee, half the number in the Dec. 5 trustee election, which was declared invalid because of a forged petition.

Elaborate precautions are being taken this time around to make sure there are no forged petitions. Each petition for every office was notarized by Carbondale notary public Don S. Kaplan as the candidate turned it in.

In addition, Election Commissioners Ralph Rosnyk and Al Maser along with several student volunteers worked late Monday evening verifying signatures on each of the 51 petitions.

"We're checking ID numbers, addresses, and handwriting," Rosnyk said. "In addition, we're going to choose five names at random on every page of every petition and call those students. We'll make sure the student signed the petition and ask for his or her ID number and address."

Several candidates listed party affiliations on their petitions, but Rosnyk said the affiliations are not official until he has received "a complete party slate from each party chairman."

"I've sent letters to the chairman and requested the official slates no later than April 1," Rosnyk said. "The ballots will list affiliations only for people on the chairman's slate."

All of the candidates for president and vice president are men. The 13 running for president are: Scott Wallin, John Matthew Chancey, Michael Olson, Dennis Sullivan, Terry Mullins, Monroe Smith, Jess Lopez, Garry Barker, Thomas Cottingham, Mark Harris, Donald Kotz, Jeff Lohrmann and Bill Wesley.

The nine men running for vice president are: Charles Ward, Rich Riggio, Robert Seely, Harry Yaseen, Gary Jaquet, John Sheridan, Larry Roth, Marc Kamm and Alan Jacobson.

The six student trustee candidates are Nancy Buffum, Steve Nuckles, Ronny Adams, Matthew Rich, Cynthia K. Jones and Robert Burke.

Senate candidates are: Small Group Housing (one seat open): Michael Hilderbrand, Bennetta Pennisi and Thomas Feltes; Brush Towers (two seats open): Richard Starzyk, Michael Baker and Benjamin Barron; Thompson Point (one seat open): James Wire, Rose Czaicki, William Roper and Eugene Desavouret; University Park

(one seat open): David Stevens; East Side (five seats open): Van Larson, Thomas Phalin, Mary Hartzell, Norman Porter, Brock Kasnick, Leonard Swanson and Nora Cronin; West Side (seven seats open): Michael J. Smith, Greer Knopf, James Ray Wood and Christopher Panfil.

No one filed for the two seats open in the commuter district or the one seat open in the School of Technical Careers.

Rosnyk said one student, Nancy Russell, with the same signature and same ID number had completed petitions for both Thompson Point and East Side seats. "I'll contact her and have her decide which district she wants to run in," Rosnyk said, "because she can only run in one."

Rosnyk said all candidates will have their names drawn Wednesday night for ballot position.

doing, they're doing on their own. I'm not sitting in coaching."

Orescanin said his SIU job called for close relations with the community, and the letters reflected local reaction to SIU problems. Loyalty and input to SIU from area residents are vital to SIU's existence, he said.

"It's an area University, not just belonging to one or two people," he continued. Within the framework of board policies and guidelines for SIU's operations, everyone has an opportunity for directing advice to the "people's University," he said.

James Brown, chief of board staff, acknowledged the board's receipt of "a couple of telegrams and maybe a half-dozen letters" supporting Orescanin. Copies were distributed to board members, but Brown said he was "not aware of any response."

Orescanin said Monday he has received about 25 letters and upwards of 70 telephone calls supporting him. He said he received several "crank calls" shortly after the resignation request, but he added they have ceased.

The Carbondale Chamber of Commerce has not taken an official position on the Orescanin situation, but support may come out of its Tuesday meeting, said Marvin Van Metre, executive vice president.

State Sen. Kenneth Buzbee, D-Carbondale, said most people probably feel his office inappropriate for comments about Orescanin, but said he has received "a couple of calls."

Brown would not comment on the board's special session Saturday, saying speculation is "intriguing, but not necessarily valuable."

That meeting, plus the executive session scheduled for Wednesday night, "indicates a concern with something needing sufficient attention as to timing, without waiting for the next (regular) board meeting," Brown said.

Partly cloudy, cooler

Tuesday: Partly cloudy and cooler with the high temperature in the upper 40s to lower 50s. There will be a 40 per cent probability for showers during the morning and afternoon. The wind will be from the S to SW at 8-18 mph. Relative humidity 85 per cent.

Tuesday night: Continued partly cloudy and cold with the low temperature in the upper 20s to lower 30s. Precipitation probabilities will be decreasing to 30 per cent tonight and 20 per cent tomorrow.

Wednesday: Mostly sunny and mild with the high around 50 degrees.

Rites of Spring

Streaking has finally arrived on the campus of SIU. Everyone must have wondered now and then just when it would hit.

Sometimes a little slow to get a handle on the major social upheavals, SIU has jumped into the flux early this time with her colorful Adidas flying; Mercury would be proud.

Anyone can swallow goldfish, cram themselves with numerous other bodies into telephone booths or Volkswagens, but it takes guts to strip down to the buff with only a smile and tennis shoes to carry one across the hazards of the campus.

There must be a great feeling of exhilaration to be able to streak in, around and through buildings in broad daylight, sometimes with dogs and police just inches from one's gluteus maximus, and emerge unscathed and uncaught.

Who does not run to see these phantom heroes on their self-appointed mission (and who really knows what their mission is but they?) that does not secretly wish that they could expose their winter worn epidermis to the sun in a glorious Rite of Spring?

Streaking an art form?

To the Daily Egyptian:

Attention Students!

Wanna shock your parents? Invite 'em down to SIU in the next couple of weeks to participate in the newest form of degeneracy in the land—no, we're not talking about "streaking", but about the art of WATCHING streakers.

Streaking, in and of itself, can be a genuine test of ingenuity and cleverness, the ability to combine shock, humor, and outrageous daring in an act of animated graffiti to the delight of all concerned. Good streakers are beginning to realize that a plain nude can be just plain boring; witness the several streakers on campus Friday, who attracted more yawns than shouts of encouragement.

Only a puritan or an ascetic hermit could not find something to chuckle about upon seeing a masked roller-skater streaking past Morris Library. But there is an art to watching a good streak as well as a talent for doing one. It is hard to say who is worse, the girl who boredly disrobes and strolls 50 feet to dress again without so much as a grin, or the hundreds of voyeurs who race across campus with eyeballs and tongue hanging out to stare at her. Streaking will not last long if the participants find themselves corralled and pursued by dozens of gawking lechers who wait hours for their arrival.

Streaking is providing us with something we have needed for a long time—a good laugh. Let's not ruin it by treating it as an opportunity for smut.

'Second senate' not needed

To the Daily Egyptian:

What can John King be thinking of? It seems most peculiar to be talking about a second faculty representative body, especially just a couple of months before Faculty Senate elections. Does Prof. King realize that there will be only five holdover members of the Senate? All the other seats will be open. He should be out electioneering, not cooking up rump parliaments.

I'll take butterflies

Collecting is a popular hobby which can involve almost any type of article. An interest in collecting can be a temporary diversion or it can last a lifetime; many persons find collecting things a natural habit. Time and expense, of course, influence the choice of a collection. A collection's value is determined by its rarity, demand and condition. (But it is not wise to begin a collection solely with the idea of making money.)

Popular collector's items include seashells, butterflies, stamps, coins, dolls, toys, books, buttons, glassware, autographs, postcards, matchbook covers, rocks and parking tickets.

Parking tickets? I didn't really choose to collect them. It seems they just become a natural habit, despite the fact that my interest in collections generally has been minimal.

Parking tickets usually are not objects of interest and enjoyment, although studying the variety of offenses and deciphering the scribbled messages pertaining to any particular offense might offer many hours of diversion.

My first acquisition was one of the more rare specimens issued by the Parking Division of the Security Office. It was of the genuine $10 variety, bestowed on me in recognition of my parking a motor vehicle on University property without displaying a current decal.

(I have an aversion to stickers cluttering up my car. I do not want my car to be labeled. Anyway, it already has several other distinguishing marks such as rust, a lop-sided antenna and a crooked tail pipe. These characteristics are distinguishing enough for my purposes, though I really do understand the University has its reasons for requiring the display of a sticker by those affiliated with the University.)

The monetary value of my first specimen convinced me to overcome my sticker phobia and submit my car to the necessary classification, labelization and sanctification.

SIU stickers have one advantage over city and suburban stickers. With an SIU sticker, instead of cluttering up your windshield, you only have to clutter up your rear bumper.

After my car was properly equipped with a red sticker, I was sure all would go well. But the Parking Division of the Security Office must be the most efficient organization on campus with the most diligent officers.

During winter term, it seemed that no matter where I parked, when I parked there, why I parked there, almost every time I returned to my car, another and another and another of those yellow devils, flapping in the breeze, would be trapped under my windshield wiper.

I admit I treated my collection poorly. I didn't press my tickets between sheets of plastic, mount them in picture frames or paste them in albums. Instead I let them moulder away at the bottom of my purse, where they became wadded, torn and mangled.

The value of a collection depends on its rarity, demand and condition. But my collection was common, not in demand and in poor condition. The choice of a hobby must be determined by one's time and the expense involved. But I had neither the time nor the money to become really serious about my collection, although there was ample opportunity for adding to it.

I took my collection to the Parking Division of the Security Office, where I paid the clerk for taking it off my hands. My newer tickets were only worth $3.00. But my older tickets, since the older an item is—the more value it has—were worth $5.00.

I decided that because of the time and expense involved I didn't wish to pursue this hobby any further. Some ways to avoid more tickets are:

1. Stop driving. (I live too far out.)
  2. Buy a blue sticker. (More clutter.)
  3. Try the appeal procedure. (The desire to be on time for class is not an acceptable basis for appeal.)
  4. Stop parking in forbidden or questionable areas.
- It seems option 4 is my only workable solution...But I will only be gone for five minutes...I'll try it just this time...Nobody really uses this sidewalk...This blue lot has plenty of spaces.

How to wait at the gas station

By Arthur Hoppe
Chronicle Features

The Energy Crisis was cracked in the summer of 1974 with the opening of the first authentic Super Service Station. As with most inventions, its mother was necessity.

By March of that year, half the population was waiting in long lines for gasoline while the other half was circling the area searching unsuccessfully for shorter lines in which to wait.

The median wait had grown to 7.6 hours and it was the lucky motorist who averaged a gallon an hour, no matter what size car he waited in.

The initial effect on Americans, physically and mentally, was disastrous. Sitting all day in a car while munching box lunches and staring angrily straight ahead tended to make them sedentary, surly and surfeited.

Acting swiftly in this new emotional crisis, The Energy Czar issued an emergency booklet entitled, "What to Do While Waiting in Line at the Gas Station."

Chapters included: Jogging in Place, Counting Up to One Million by Sevens, Playing Parcheesi with the Motorist Ahead of You, Counting Down from One Million by Seven Backwards, and Tatting Made Easy.

While the booklet did much to relieve the tedium (Parcheesi players were constantly getting into fist-fights), an even more grave crisis arose: The economy was grinding to a standstill.

"With all the breadwinners waiting in line to buy gas so they can go out and win their bread," the worried Energy Czar told his wife one evening, "no one has time to win any bread."

"Let them," said the Czarina complacently, "eat cake."

"Cake?" said the Czar.

"Yes," said the Czarina. "I know this marvelous bakery that will deliver this scrumptious chocolate..."

"Eureka!" cried the Czar. "You've got it. Here we've been trying to produce more gas to get people to their schools and jobs and the dry-cleaners. Instead of bringing the people to where the services are, let us bring the services to where the people are. And where are the people? At the gas station!"

So it was that the first Super Service Station opened in Duluth on July 4. It consisted of a complex of buildings hovering over a wide, five-mile-long conveyor belt. At the far end of the belt, like the light at the end of the tunnel, shone a golden gas pump.

Every morning, the whole family would pile happily into the car to drive down to the Super Service Station and onto the belt. Schools and offices were first and the husband and children would climb out with farewell hugs and kisses.

The housewife would then begin her leisurely trip through the day on the conveyor belt at .6 miles per hour toward the distant pump. On the way, she would pick up the groceries, the re-soled shoes, a rinse and a set, a new filling, lunch at Ye Olde Tea Shoppe, a half hour with the psychiatrist and all the gossip she could handle.

At day's end, glowing with accomplishment, she would reach the golden pump to be given precisely enough gas to drive her family home that night and back to the belt the next morning.

And so, as the Arabs fumed, Americans dwelt in serenity, having discovered the key to happiness in a modern technological society — how to make waiting in line a pleasure.

We were labeled

To the Daily Egyptian:

In defense of the young men residing at Bailey Hall, I shall direct my wholehearted disputations towards a certain article published in the Daily Egyptian on March 6. Ms. Michele Ver Voort, student journalist, inserted a rather exaggerated article concerning the Bailey Dating Service.

It is quite obvious that Ms. Ver Voort, claiming to have expressed a sincere desire to arrange a date, did not understand the intentions and principles agreed upon by the members of the dating service. We are twenty male students who consented with each other to make an effort to meet some young women on campus. Our service was free of charge, free of commitments by either party, and dedicated towards providing an enjoyable time for both. Much to our dismay, Ms. Ver Voort undoubtedly had a negative attitude towards the Bailey Dating Service before she even picked up the phone: so did fifteen to twenty others who made an effort to inquire about our purpose. From her article, however, I should venture to say that she never gave us a chance.

Most disturbing, however, was Ms. Ver Voort's embarrassing remark, referring to my comrades and myself as "these little kids." I would very much like to inform her that many, if not all, of us are mature, intelligent, and unselfish adults who are probably more fully developed mentally, as well as physically, than any other "older men" she could hope to meet.

Since our encounter, the Bailey Dating Service has disbanded. We no longer have inquiries about the service, due to the fact that we no longer advertise. As Ms. Ver Voort suggested in her article, the Bailey Dating Service was a disaster. The attitude of our offensive young journalist, like the majority of others who called us, is the one big reason for the disaster. I am most happy to inform Ms. Ver Voort, however, that I, for one, will not have an oversimplified conception of what all female journalists are really like, unlike the stereotype which she clamped upon the gentlemen of Bailey Hall.

Very sincerely,
Michael G. Mack

Unsigned letters will not be accepted, and authorship of all letters must be verified by the Daily Egyptian. It is the responsibility of the Daily Egyptian to determine content of the opinion pages. Other materials on pages four and five include editorials and articles reprinted from other publications, syndicated columns and articles, and interpretive or opinion articles authored locally.

President and privacy

Mike Mansfield, the respected Senate majority leader, recently told reporters in his office that "I have people go through here regularly looking for bugs." That will serve as an introductory comment on the state of privacy in the nation's capital, where President Nixon must have startled Congress by saying, in his State of the Union message, that he would attempt to "erect new safeguards" to insure the right of privacy.

In Washington it has become a regular thing for officials to check against the possibility of electronic surveillance, even in closed hearings of congressional committees. The CIA sent teams to "sweep" the Senate chamber and surrounding rooms before agency spokesmen testified last fall. State and Defense department teams did the same thing, Senator Mansfield learned.

Washington is, of course, a talkative town; indeed, it has the highest telephone density in the world; with more phones than people. But bugging operations have gone far beyond mere wiretapping, and nobody really knows how far they have gone, or for what reason. The permanent investigations subcommittee under Senator Jackson of Washington has begun an effort to find out, sending detailed questionnaires to a host of agencies, including the FBI. Mr. Jackson says that he hopes to eliminate all "unwarranted" surveillance, but he will be fortunate to discover what is warranted and who warranted it.

Congress itself, as we have said before, contributed to the wholesale invasions of privacy by legalizing wiretapping in a 1968 law. It has been left for the Nixon Administration, however, to expand such spying beyond the bounds that Congress expected of it. This is the Administration in which presidential plumbers spied on private citizens and one department spied on another. In view of the record of the Watergate tapes and other documents withheld and obliterated, Mr. Nixon's interest in privacy so far has been in privacy for himself.

Still, the Justice Department's new legislative proposal to restrict dissemination of arrest records and law enforcement data bank material is a small start toward aiding the privacy of the people. After that there will be a long way to go.

Collinsville attorney fights for first Senatwin in 4 tries

By Randall R. von Liski
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

"Three strikes and you're out" is a phrase that is every bit as applicable to politicians as to baseball players. Except Dakin Williams.

Williams is fighting to avoid his fourth straight defeat for the U.S. Senate. The 55-year-old brother of playwright Tennessee Williams lost primary contests in 1968, 1970, and 1972.

This time Williams is facing Sen. Adali Stevenson III in the March 19 Democratic primary.

While Williams has a long way to go in overcoming Stevenson's name recognition among Democratic voters in the state, he is sure to get in at least a few good jabs at Stevenson before the primary is over.

On issues Williams has said he is to the right of Stevenson. The Collinsville attorney said "He's (Stevenson) voted for continued busing...and at a time when there is a gas shortage" Williams said he believes "The day when blacks want to be integrated is long past."

But an end to busing is only one of Williams solutions to the energy crunch. "We should stop making the Arabs furious at us," he said. "Why should the general public support a religious state (Israel). There is no reason for Catholics and Baptists and Protestants to support a Jewish state. I am opposed to taking the cost out of my pocketbook."

Williams said that he is opposing Stevenson because "I think he is a poor Senator and I'm not afraid of his family name. He's a potatoe candidate. He's always bragging about his ancestors...the best part is underground."

Williams claimed that a recent statement by Jane M. Byrne, a top aide to Chicago Mayor Richard Daley and official of the Democratic National Committee, was the turning point in his campaign.

Byrne told the Chicago Daily News that in the March 19 primary she is going to "exercise the kind of political independence that Sen. Stevenson seems to admire" by voting for his opponent, Dakin Williams.

According to the Daily News, Byrne was incensed over Stevenson's statement in the press that "this may be time for Daley to step aside." She denounced the Senator as "a disloyal opportunist who is running for President on his father's name."

Williams said in an interview that "I will be the beneficiary of a large amount of the Democratic machine in Cook County." He called Stevenson's statement about Daley "incredible."

Trying to make a case that he really is a serious contender for the nomination, (the Chicago Tribune recently called him a "political nuisance") Williams mentioned that in 1972 he carried 32 of Illinois' 102 counties, and that he received 30 per cent of the vote. His opponent was former congressman Roman Pucinski.

Williams said Stevenson has "abdicated his legislative duties to Nixon." While Stevenson has at times been a strong critic of the Administration, Williams still feels that it is fair to tie Stevenson and Nixon together. "He's taking the voters for granted," said Williams.

Williams said that he is strongly against "excessive welfare." The candidate said he would not favor a guaranteed annual income for anyone, "particularly for families with illegitimate children." Clarifying his position, Williams said he would like to see aid to welfare families cut-off after they have their third illegitimate child.

On Watergate Williams said that he favors the President's impeachment and "would vote to convict him on his income tax alone" if he had the opportunity to do so.

He is opposed to passage of the Equal Right's Amendment. "Women are better off the way they are," he said.

On gun control Williams accuses Stevenson of attempting to pass legislation that would make registration of firearms a federal law. He said he believes that if Stevenson is re-elected, it will be "a go-ahead signal for Sen. Percy and 99 other senators to vote for gun confiscation and gun registration."

Women expect 'uphill battle' for ratification of equal rights

Ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment will require a "long uphill battle," Genevieve Houghton of the Women's Social and Political Action Committee said Saturday.

Ms. Houghton was one of eight scheduled speakers at the International Women's Day celebration at the Women's Center, 404 W. Walnut. Topics ranged from "Women's Sexuality" to "A Feminist Look at American Folk Music."

Ms. Houghton said the ERA needs ratification by 38 states before it can become a constitutional amendment. At present, it has been ratified by 33 states, but things have bogged down, she said. While Illinois is considering the bill this year, at least five or six other states won't be, Ms. Houghton said. She said Nebraska passed the amendment but is now trying to repeal it. She said she believes this attempt to repeal it will be declared unconstitutional.

Ms. Houghton pointed out that under the U.S. Constitution, women are granted only the right to vote. However, women in Illinois will not derive much benefit from the ERA since almost all rights covered by it are presently granted by the Illinois Constitution.

Some areas in which women will benefit are higher education, property rights and protective legislation for women employees, according to Ms. Houghton. She said it would also force removal of various restrictions in the social security laws which apply to women.

Ms. Houghton said if the amendment is passed it will have little effect upon women within the framework of marriage. She said courts are reluctant to intervene while a marriage is intact, but the amendment would give women more rights in property settlements.

Ms. Houghton said, despite some popular opinion, the amendment will not require integration of toilet facilities, prisons, barracks and dormitories. She pointed out that under a previous U.S. Supreme Court ruling (Griswold vs. Connecticut) the right to privacy has been established. However, it does establish the doctrine of separate but equal facilities.

Ms. Houghton said that if the amendment were passed, it will make women eligible for the draft if it is reinstituted.

Ombudsman application deadline nears, 25 persons show interest

Persons interested in filling the interim Ombudsman office, vacant April 1, have until 5 p.m. Tuesday to declare their intentions, said H. Arnold Barton, chairman of the University Ombudsman Panel.

About 25 persons have shown interest in the office to date. Barton said he was "overwhelmed" with the response.

Kris Haedrich, present Ombudsman, will resign effective April 1, leaving the $11,000 post open until July 1. No decision has been made about continuing the Ombudsman function past July.

After calling either Barton or Ms. Haedrich, interested persons must submit resumes and credentials to the Ombuds office, 7-40 barracks, by 5 p.m. Wednesday. At least three preferably local references should be included.

"We've not laid down very definite guidelines for the job," Barton said. Applicants need only be available on a full-time basis and have at least a bachelor's degree, he explained.

"The less restrictions, the more we have to choose from," Barton said. He added choosing an Ombudsman from such a large group should result in a "very well qualified person."

Barton said the Ombuds Panel hopes to appear before the Board of Trustees in April to present a case for continuing the office.

He mentioned the applications for the Ombuds post will be screened starting Thursday, and selection of a temporary, full-time Ombudsman may be made within 7-10 days.

Ogilvie promotes RTA

CHICAGO (AP) — Former Gov. Richard Ogilvie announced Monday he will campaign personally for voter approval of the proposed Regional Transportation Authority in the March 19 primary.

In a statement, Ogilvie said, "This RTA must pass now if we are to avoid almost certain transportation disaster."

"I have been in the RTA fight for years," he said, "and now I am going to fight for it again. I will be out in the suburbs and I will carry this message to everybody who is willing to listen: I urge you to support the RTA next Tuesday."

Ogilvie said he could not understand the opposition to the RTA expressed by some groups. But he said he believed the RTA was in danger of failing to win approval.

"If we fail, we will not have another chance," he said. He called the RTA the "best chance for better transportation" in the six-county Chicago Metropolitan Area.

The RTA, if approved by the voters, would move to place all of the public transportation in the six-county area under one administrative umbrella.

Congressmen request media consumer spots

WASHINGTON (AP)—In an effort to counter oil company advertising, 16 members of Congress asked the nation's 7,000 broadcasters Monday to carry commercials suggesting that the oil companies, not the consumers, change their habits.

Announcing the media campaign at a news conference, Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal, D-N.Y., cited the "Fairness Doctrine" in his effort to convince radio and television stations to carry the announcements to balance what he calls a multi-million dollar advertising campaign waged by the energy industry.

He said that if his efforts are not successful within 30 to 60 days, legislative action to remove certain tax exemptions granted to companies for advertising expenses may be necessary.

"The average consumer—the average American—simply has not been afforded an equal opportunity to hear the other side," Rosenthal said.

"We must combat the gross imbalance created by the industry's advertising blitz if the public is to make intelligent and well-informed decisions about the current situation and future national energy policy."

The group of representatives, joined by five consumer and environmental groups, is offering several commercials. One, showing a well lit office building at night, features an announcer saying:

"The power companies tell the small users to conserve, but rate studies tell the big users to use more. It seems like a strange way to save energy."

The advertiser refers to utility rates that offer cheaper power to those who consume large amounts.

The labor for the commercials was donated, Rosenthal said, and the group will not pay for the air time, which they hope would be given to them "during the prime viewing time which has been used so heavily by the energy industry."

Rosenthal said the oil company advertising is aimed at expressing a political message that the firms are not responsible for the energy crisis, and not at selling a product. Thus, he said, they should not be considered tax deductible as a business expense.

In New York, Edwin D. Etherington, chairman of the National Advertising Review

Board, said oil companies have a right and an obligation to make their views known through advertising. However, he said they should also say if they have "a vested interest in a public policy position."

Audience finds 'Nanette' a solid winner

By Diane Mizialko
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The first act of "No, No, Nanette" was half over when Benny Baker and Andrea Walters moved to center stage for their lilting duet, "I Want to Be Happy." Until that instant, the revived 1925 musical had crept along like the relic it is.

But then, something happened. You could feel a wave of warmth—or maybe it was love—pass through Shryock Auditorium. From that special moment in the first act lawyer husband Billy, were consummately professional. Ms. Ackerman, especially, was dazzling as the spendthrift all-woman woman; she brought down the house with her third act change-of-pace rendition of "Where-Has-My-Hubby-Gone? Blues."

Ms. Ackerman is the daughter of "Nanette's" producer, Cyma Rubin. Perhaps all that determined competence displayed onstage Friday night is a function of Ms. Ackerman's need to prove it was talent—not Mama's influence—that won her the part. She proved it in spades.

As Nanette, the Smiths' young ward who yearns for a little fun before settling down to raise "a boy for you and a girl for me," Ms. Walters was pixish and shiny bright. A model ingenue, her smile never faltered. This was quite an achievement, because the young actress was forced to play to Robert Louison as Nanette's suitor, Tom. Mr. Louison apparently is a graduate of the Andy Griffith school of acting, where he majored in saying "Gee whiz," with an amazed and somewhat stupid expression.

Next to Mr. Louison's seedy performance, "Nanette's" chief irritant was Betty Kean, as the irreverent maid, Pauline. To compensate for holding down an almost pointless role, Ms. Kean mugged and clowned ad infinitum and ad nauseum. If a foolish face or silly shuffle sparked a laugh, Ms. Kean felt impelled to repeat it a half-dozen times. (The audience must take its share of the blame for encouraging her efforts.) There's something distinctly unsettling about watching a white-haired, stout grandma show off her long-legged girdle for yuks.

As three flappers sing in on Jimmy's fortune, Diane Ryan (Flo from Frisco), Sharon Bruce (Betty from Boston) and Cheryl Armstrong (Winnie from Washington) were vamps but not brittle. (Wholesome vamps?) They played their stereotypical roles to the hilt, but managed to soften the 'dumb broad' jokes which otherwise would have been not only offensive, but stale. The very best thing about "Nanette" was the clever staging that made the production numbers a joy to see. The roadshow's advance publicity gave staging and direction credits to Donald Saddler and Burt Shevelove, respectively, who shaped "Nanette" for Broadway. But Friday's playbill credited Bob Becker with staging and Michael Turque with direction. They deserve all the credit they can get.

The "Peach on the Beach" number, in which chorines execute a seaside ballet balanced atop giant rolling beach balls, and the drifting, if perhaps overly long, soft shoe to "Tea for Two" were near showstop-pers. The show's final number, "Take a little One-Step," crammed more flashy movement onto Shryock's stage than seemed possible. In view of the effort they poured into these and other musical gems, the chorus must be forgiven a tendency to camp it up. (After all, it has been a long run.)

Yes, once the first act got moving, everything about "No, No, Nanette" was right—even when it was wrong. It was nice for a change. And, certainly, it was fun.

A Review

to the finale's last ukelele plink, "No, No, Nanette," Friday's Celebrity Series offering, was a solid winner.

Once captivated, the audience applauded everything, including the sparkling period costumes by Raoul DuBois. It didn't matter at all that the plot was a lightweight concoction hinged on nothing more than a Bible publisher's efforts to spread sunshine, or that top-billed Evelyn Keyes, as the publisher's ice cube of a wife, never managed to forget herself long enough to turn in a credible performance. To the fascinated audience, everything about "No, No, Nanette" was perfect.

And there really was much about the show that approached perfection. Benny Baker, as Bible publisher Jimmy Smith, displayed an unflinching and elfin charm. He was the perennial innocent bumbler that everyone loves to hug.

Loni Zoe Ackerman, as Lucille Early, and Denny Shearer, as her

Fund raising to aid drought victims

By LaVerne Ollie
Student Writer

A series of fund raising events will be held at the beginning of spring quarter to help the drought victims in Africa, said Hassan Sisay, president of the African Student Association.

About 10 million people are dying of famine because of the lack of rain in west Africa, Sisay explained.

"We are appealing to everyone for help, because this concerns people that are dying," Sisay said.

The activities to raise money for the drought victims are being sponsored by the African Student Association in conjunction with the Black Affairs Council and the Black Together Organization.

Several bake sales will be held for the benefit of the African relief fund, Sisay said. Raffle tickets will also be sold. Prizes will include African jewelry and dashikis. Sisay said the groups hope to give a dance featuring the Emperor Dele-Ojo and his African Internationale, an African band. Several skating parties have also been planned.

"We are also hoping to solicit some funds from whoever wants to contribute," Sisay said. The African relief fund sponsors plan to set up tables on campus to explain why funds are needed and to collect contributions.

Activities will probably continue until the African Day Celebration, April 27, Sisay said. A check for the funds raised will be presented to the ambassador of Senegal.

The African relief fund raising events here are being held as a part of the Relief for Africans in Need in Sahel (RAINS), a national organization that is trying to coordinate efforts in the United States to help the African drought victims, Sisay said.

Mrs. Nixon to impart good will

HOMESTEAD AIR FORCE BASE, Fla. (AP) — As a high school band played a lively Latin melody, First Lady Pat Nixon departed Monday on a six-day tour of South American nations that President Nixon declared are "our closest friends and neighbors."

Mrs. Nixon's first stop on the 9,195-mile trip was Caracas, the capital of Venezuela, where she and then-Vice President Nixon were spat upon and their motorcade stoned 16 years ago.

On Tuesday, Mrs. Nixon will be the President's personal representative at the inauguration of Venezuelan President Carlos Andres Perez.

On Friday, she will attend the inauguration of Brazil's president, retired army Gen. Ernesto Geisel.

At sendoff ceremonies at Homestead Air Force Base south of Miami, Nixon called his wife "the best ambassador the United States has."

Her assignment on the mission was "to bring the best wishes of the American people to the people of all the countries she visits."

In brief comments to a crowd of more than 500 gathered on the sunny airport tarmac, the President said that her trip will bring to the attention of the world that "here in the Western Hemisphere are our closest friends and neighbors."

Mrs. Nixon, before the President escorted her to the waiting Boeing 707 presidential jetliner, said she would "give your best wishes and your affection to the people" of Latin America.

The crowd of well-wishers was dotted with such signs as "Mrs. Ambassador, show we care" and Nixon's our man." School children waved tiny American flags and the Killian High School band from Miami blended patriotic songs with such Latin melodies as "Brazil."

The trip appears to mark the beginning of a White House effort to broaden the scope of Mrs. Nixon's person appearances. Next Sunday she is scheduled to appear on ABC's "Issues and Answers."

Saturday night, upon her return from Latin America, she will join the President at the "Grand Ole Opry" in Nashville, Tenn.

The First Lady's 50-member traveling party included White House physician Walter Tkach, deputy CIA Director Vernon Walters, who is serving as her interpreter, and Mrs. Nixon's hairdresser-secretary, Rita DeSantis.

F-Senate asks Trustees to suspend Orescanin

A resolution calling for Dan Orescanin's suspension without pay will be presented at the Faculty Senate meeting starting at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Student Center Mississippi Room.

Orescanin, executive vice president and treasurer, requested reassignment to a teaching position Feb. 28. The request paralleled disclosures of "irregularities" in Orescanin's handling of funds from a restricted account.

The resolution questions Orescanin's assuming a teaching position, and asks the Board of Trustees to suspend him without pay until the board's investigation of Orescanin is completed.

In another matter, the senate's governance committee will submit a statement calling for withdrawal from the University Senate. The resolution says U-Senate's fourth draft of its operating paper does not adequately remedy the faults of the third draft.

Guidelines for academic proficiency exams will be laid before the senate for approval. The senate will also hear committee reports on the executive officer-board relationships, University program and budget review and senate elections.

Strip-mining solution in sight

HARRISBURG (AP)—Strip-mined Southern Illinois has a problem and populous Chicago has a solution—about 1.3 billion gallons of solution a day.

That's how much sewage, by conservative estimate, the Metropolitan Sanitary District takes in in 24 hours and it's running out of places to put it.

Southern Illinois has a lot of large ditches that once were strip mines and many of them can't be reclaimed through normal methods because the exposed sub-surface is too sulfurous to support plants.

Well, what's a more natural fertilizer than sewage?

So, beginning this spring, rail shipments of Chicago's treated waste will begin arriving at a 200-acre abandoned strip mine in the Shawnee National Forest about halfway between Harrisburg and Marion. Beginning this summer the waste, about 90 per cent water, will be sprayed into furrows in the mine and the land will be seeded.

Administered by the Forest Service, the project hopefully will make the land fertile enough to support grasses which in turn will build a natural soil. Before it's over, 60 million gallons of treated liquid waste will be plowed into the mine, adding some 140 tons of dry waste per acre after evaporation. It's expected to take at least two years.

Wayne Nicolls, an information officer with the service, says, "The material has a smell very similar to wet soil. It doesn't have any sewage odor. It doesn't resemble sewage either. It'd be like a liquid fertilizer material."

The idea first came up in 1968. After a series of hearings the Forest Service and the Sanitary District began a pilot project in 1970 on a quarter acre and pronounced it successful two years later.

Peabody Coal Co., one of the biggest miners in the area, is cooperating with the expanded project, furnishing use of its rail terminal, a tract for a holding pool and power to pump the waste to the abandoned mine.

Nicolls says, "We see very definite possibilities of being able to do this on a larger scale. The reason we've gone to Chicago is because waste is available there and it is well treated."

"They have had their backs to the wall with finding places to use it. The very things that are a burden to them are the very things needed to make unuseable land useable again."

Researchers for Southern Illinois University will monitor the project, checking it for commercial feasibility and for additional possibilities.

Center changes final week hours

The Student Center will be open from 7 a.m. to midnight Tuesday through Saturday of finals week, from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Sunday, 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. March 18 and from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. March 19.

Who Has Endorsed Paul Simon?

• AFL-CIO

Paul Simon believes that by helping those who are middle income and lower income, the entire economy benefits. His record is so clear in this field that each time he has sought public office he has had the AFL-CIO endorsement.

• Illinois Education Association

The teachers who make up this organization voted unanimously to endorse Paul Simon because of his leadership in the field of education.

• Agriculture Leaders

A part-time farmer who grew up working on a farm, Paul Simon has always received the highest ratings from all of the farm organizations.

• Business Leaders

A former businessman, he understands the problems which small businessmen face. Among his supporters are prominent business leaders, bankers and professional people.

Where Does Paul Simon Stand On Some of the Key Issues?

• Corruption

Paul Simon got his start in politics when the small newspaper which he published started fighting corruption in county government. He has continued that fight. Each year he has held public office he has made public his income in detail. When he became Lieutenant Governor, he was the first state official in the nation to demand this of his staff.

• Integrity in Campaigning

Paul Simon believes that one of the reasons the public is disillusioned with politics is that too many candidates say one thing before an election and do something else afterwards. Paul's record is clear. You may not like what he says, but he doesn't tell one group one thing and another something else. And he does not go around making a lot of easy promises.

• Inflation

"Inflation is no more inevitable than a flat tire is inevitable," Paul stated recently. Inflation can be halted, and the public protected if sensible fiscal policies are followed. Inflation is a tax increase that you pay — and it hits those hardest who can least afford it.

• Energy

A major part of the answer to the energy crunch is coal. Coal research must be pushed, as must coal gasification plants for Southern Illinois. Tax laws must also discourage oil monopolies, at the same time they encourage oil exploration.

• Development of Southern Illinois

This area has had outstanding leadership from Congressman Kenneth Gray. The congressman from this area must continue to push programs which help small communities develop, which encourage more physicians to come here, which provide greater assistance for schools so there can be less reliance on the real estate tax. Southern Illinois has made substantial progress in the last 20 years, but much remains to be done, and Paul Simon wants to work on it.

"So far as ability and integrity goes, Simon would be hard to match."
— Benton Evening News

"One of the finest candidates for Congress anywhere in the nation."
— Paul H. Douglas

"Paul Simon was probably the best Lieutenant Governor in the history of Illinois."
— St. Louis Globe-Democrat

"He has the integrity that inspires trust, and the experience in government necessary to get results."
— Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson

Can Paul Simon Do An Effective Job?

• He Has Experience

Eight years in the Illinois House of Representatives, six years in the State Senate, and four years as presiding officer of the Senate, he understands the legislative process. He knows how to get things done. Seidom do you get this much know-how in a man now 45 years old.

• He Knows the Needs of Our Area

He served part of this area when he was elected to the legislature, and he has been serving all of it since. As Sen. Kenneth Buehler of Carbondale said, "The man who knows Southern Illinois the best, and the man with the stature and ability to do the best job in Congress for us, is clearly Paul Simon."

• He Is Respected by the Members of Congress

Known by many of the leaders of the United States Senate and House of Representatives, he has worked closely with dozens of Congressmen on various projects. They know Paul and respect him.

Fee board continues hearings

The Joint Fee Allocation Board (JFAB) continued hearing budget requests Monday from the more than 35 campus organizations requesting funds.

Margo Carlock and Dan Kelley of Inter-Greek Council discussed their organization's proposed $14,000 budget with the board Monday afternoon.

Spring Welcome, "Nutshell" magazine and several charity drives.

JFAB member Ron Adams said the hearings would continue "probably as late as 10 p.m." Monday night, and that no hearings were scheduled for Tuesday.

Previously Tuesday had been scheduled as deliberation day for the board after hearing all requests. Adams said he did not know when deliberations would be made. The projected deadline for JFAB recommendations is March 22.

Information flow bogged down

By Julie Titone
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Dean of Library Affairs Ralph McCoy is currently chairman of two national committees involved in what he calls "something that needs to be done"—the improved distribution of government materials to the national depository library system.

McCoy describes the first committee, the Advisory Council to the Public Printer on Depository Libraries, as "something of a watchdog committee." Set up to advise the head of the government printing office, the group consists of 12 members from various parts of the country. Representatives of university libraries, public libraries and the Library of Congress are included.

The new government printer, T. F. McCormick, is very open to suggestions, according to McCoy. McCormick's responsibilities include the printing of all government documents as well as their sale and distribution.

"The document distribution program has really been bogged down," McCoy said. "Not the least of the problems is the spectacular rise of costs of printing and the lack of space in the Washington facilities."

Also, the printing office is not making use of modern techniques. More and more government documents are being farmed out to private printing organizations. Libraries are paying higher prices for those materials—particularly those in the sciences—that should be free.

McCoy said he hopes the advisory group can help improve the situation in which government information is difficult to obtain at a time when it should be more freely available.

The second group McCoy chairs is the American Library Association's (ALA) Ad Hoc Committee on the Depository Library System. Created by the ALA Council at its January, 1973 meeting, the committee has devoted more than a year to the study of the depository library system, presently administered by the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Print Office.

The 10-member ad hoc committee, McCoy said, is looking to complete an expansion and reorganization of the depository library system. The group has made tentative recommendations for changes in the system and have submitted them to the ALA Council. Revisions are being made in the recommendations which will come up for final vote at the July ALA convention in New York.

The recommendations are aimed at legislation to provide for the financial support of the Depository Library System and the possible revision of the Depository Act of 1962.

"We want to expand the scope of the documents distributed free to depository libraries and to federally subsidize regional depositories," McCoy said.

There are two regional depositories in each state. In Illinois, the state library in Springfield and the University of Illinois library in Champaign serve this function, he explained. Morris

Kidnaping charge dismissed against Chicago teenager

CHICAGO (AP) — Kidnaping charges were dismissed Monday against Elizabeth Watt, 19, who was arrested in Florida for allegedly abducting a 23-month-old Chicago girl. Judge Maurice Pompey of Felony Court accepted a motion by the state's attorney's office to dismiss the charge with leave to reinstate it later.

Miss Watt, of Chicago, was arrested Jan. 11 in Dade County, Fla., and charged with kidnaping Janice Ellison the month before while babysitting.

The child's father, James Ellison, failed to appear in court for preliminary hearings Monday because of illness.

Library is a depository, though not a regional one, which would benefit from the additional free publications, but not additional funds. "Depository libraries are vital to citizens in providing them access to U.S. government information and materials at the local level," the ALA said in its charge to the ad hoc committee. As an aid to providing that information, the committee included in its recommendation the formation of a National Depository Library which would "consist of all publications produced at the expense of the federal government, regardless of format, method of reproduction or source, including security classified documents which (would) be held from public release until declassified." The collection, the committee continued, would be maintained as a permanent archive for reference and photocopy services for depository libraries and for the general public.

Let's be friends

The Mayor of Murphysboro, Bruce Richmond has always been an artist as well as a businessman and public official which gives him a slightly different vision than other politicians. Perhaps this is one of the reasons Murphysboro is one of the more attractive communities in Southern Illinois. Bruce Richmond has worked hard to keep his town unspoiled. He has an artist's eye and appreciation for the environment, and he feels the people of Southern Illinois have immeasurable wealth in the beauty of their land. He feels strongly that it is his responsibility to prevent outside forces from committing physical violence to the gentle hills of Southern Illinois.

If you think Kodak is just pretty pictures, you ought to have your chest examined.

When a chest x-ray shows that you have a potential killer like TB or cancer, it's not a pretty picture. But it's an important picture because it can help the doctor detect and catch the killer in time.

When doctors are out to catch these potential killers, they want the sharpest, clearest x-ray films they can get. And that's why people at Kodak spend so many hours creating new and better x-ray film equipment. Already, the results include convenience for the patient, economy for the hospital, an even more useful tool for the radiologist—and, most important, reduced radiation exposure.

Researching and creating better x-ray films is good for our business, which is why we went into them in the first place. But it does our society good, too—which isn't a bad feeling. After all, our business depends on our society—so we care what happens to it.

Coal strike felt

CHICAGO (AP)—The steel industry in the Chicago area has begun feeling the effects of the two-week-old coal miners strike in West Virginia, steel company spokesmen said Monday.

"We are experiencing a 25 per cent reduction in iron production already," said a spokesman for U.S. Steel.

Neat appearance a must for job interviews

If you want to apply for a job, go dressed fairly conservatively, have your hair combed, and your beard or mustache neatly groomed.

This is the consensus of company representatives interviewing students at the Career Planning and Placement Center (CPPC).

Dalton Ridling, representative for St. Paul Insurance Co. of Cape Girardeau, Mo., said his company does not frown on beards and mustaches on men interviewing for jobs. "Although five years ago having a beard and mustache would have hindered an applicant," he said.

"Probably 90 per cent of the guys I interview now have longish hair. This is just the way things are and its considered acceptable," he said.

Ridling said he had never interviewed a sloppily dressed student on any campus.

A student's extracurricular activities are considered important to the company, Ridling said. "If a person's record shows he was outgoing on campus and maintained an average grade point, we are interested in hiring him for a management position," he said.

H. (Bud) Ohms, of General Telephone in Bloomington, said hair length and beards are not important to his company when screening job applicants. "That is, if they are within reasonable limits," he said.

Ohms, whose company is looking for the average to better student, said extracurricular activities are important only if the student entered college immediately after high school.

"If the student is older, has worked for a while before returning to school, then we realize he has already had a head start and these activities are not important, he said.

"Examining the student's extracurricular activities listing gives us more insight into the person to help determine if he is an extrovert or introvert and how effective he will be with people," Ohms said.

General Telephone has interviewed students at SIU as prospective employees for about 20 years, he said.

Harvey Ideus, director of CPPC, says he talks to company representatives daily to see how he can better prepare students for interviews.

"Generally we are seeing less hair hangups than we did a few years ago. It is to the student's advantage to appear for the interview dressed somewhat conservatively," Ideus said.

Accounting and engineering firms are grade conscious but this is not the case in public relations-type positions. "The total personality is much more important for students in these areas," he said.

It is important to remember the recruiters who go to college campuses are only doing the initial screening for the company. Those considered most acceptable to the company are invited to the company office for a second interview and probably to meet supervisors, he said.

Suspect charged for bank robbery released on bond

Lionel Whittington, 32, of 102 S. Lark Lane, charged with the Feb. 22 robbery of the Goreville State Bank, was released from Jackson County Jail Friday on $5,000 bond.

The bond, originally set at $50,000 dollars, was reduced after Whittington appeared before U.S. Magistrate William Kent Brandon.

Another defendant, Vearl Ferman, 39, of 1021 N. Connors St., also had his $50,000 bond reduced. It was changed to $25,000. Ferman is still in jail.

Ferman was transferred Friday from the Jackson County to the Williamson County Jail.

A grand jury will meet in late March to decide if indictments will be returned against the men.

Whittington and Ferman are two of six persons charged with the $40,000 to $60,000 bank robbery.

Child's laughter turns to tears

MY THO, South Vietnam (AP)—The children in My Tho hospital shared no laughter Monday. Only pain.

Saturday afternoon a single 82mm mortar round landed in their midst seconds before they were to have left the playground.

Officials said 32 children were killed and scores wounded.

The seriously wounded were taken to the My Tho city hospital, about five miles from the Cai Lay schoolyard where the Viet Cong shell exploded.

The hospital is an average one for Vietnam. Water in an old whisky bottle, one pink plastic cup for 55 sick bodies, and 11 double beds for them. On one of those beds were eight little boys.

"I didn't know what had happened," said Dang Van Ngot, 13. "My leg felt itchy and I looked down. I saw blood coming out from both my feet. I tried to crawl to the classroom wall to hide. I didn't hurt, but I was very afraid. Then a teacher came and picked me up and took me to the first aid place. Then I hurt. But I didn't cry."

As he spoke softly Ngot held the hand of his best friend, who was lying next to him, and tried to keep the buzzing flies away from his bandaged legs. Like the rest of the children, his small body was encrusted with grime and dried blood was still caked between his toes and fingers.

His plastic sleeping mat and mosquito net, too, were stained from the drippings of his wounds. He still wore the once-white shirt and black short pants he'd put on to walk to school three days earlier.

"We were once more than 70. But now how many are left I don't know. Blood just kept coming out everywhere and everyone wanted their mother and father... I was so afraid I almost fainted," said Vo Van Dan, 7.

Hour after hour, Dan writhed back and forth on his small hospital bed moaning from the pain of his shrapnel-riddled left leg and shattered hip. He tried to stop crying and begging for help long enough to remember what had brought him to that place.

Dan cried for help but nobody came and he just kept sobbing. It was the only sound in the room.

Something To Consider

How much could 10 years experience and seniority be worth in the House of Representatives for Southern Illinois?

1. It could mean a strong ethics' law in Illinois.
2. It could mean no cut in Southern Illinois University's Budget.
3. It could mean tax relief for the elderly
4. It could mean no sales tax on food and medicine.
5. It could mean full funding of the teacher's retirement system.
6. It could mean the four-lane highway to St. Louis.
7. It could mean repairing our existing roads.

Gale Williams has 10 years experience and seniority. Gale Williams will be second in seniority from Southern Illinois.

Won't you consider him as your choice for State Representative.

Employees group cancels Tuesday afternoon meeting

The Civil Service Employees Council (CSEC) meeting set for 1 p.m. Tuesday has been canceled. Chairman Lee Hester announced Monday.

The Friday meeting centered around the resignation of Danilo Orescanin, executive vice president and treasurer. Hester said, Elliott made no direct comment on Orescanin or the alleged irregularities in Orescanin's handling of restricted funds, Hester said.

A special CSEC meeting may be called later this week following the Board of Trustees meeting Thursday, Hester said.

of America.

Ruth Fleck was named winner of the Herb Oetgen award.

The advisory council presented an award to Wendell Keeper for 24 years of service in agriculture at SIU. Keeper is retiring from his post as a dean of the School of Agriculture.

The banquet was held in the Carbondale Elks club.

Committee rules out loophole

Students wishing to graduate in June or August, 1974 may not use the upcoming reduction in hours because of conversion to semesters to graduate with less than 186 hours.

The Graduate Appeals Committee ruled out the move at the committee's March 6 meeting. Appeals to the committee in anticipation of the reduction of hours will not be heard, Robert A. McGrath, chairman of the committee, stated in a memo to academic deans and advisers.

According to the memo:

—Students planning to graduate either June or August 1974 will need to meet the present 186 quarter hour requirement. This agreement means that students who have obtained 180 or more hours and have satisfied all other University, academic unit and program requirements still will need to take the additional hours necessary to total 186 passed hours in order to graduate prior to Fall 1974 or they may option to delay graduation until June 1975 to which time the requirement will be 120 semester (180) hours.

—Students graduating before Fall Semester 1974 may have the newer residency requirements applied.

The residency requirement effective Fall 1974 will be either a total of 90 semester (135 quarter) hours at SIU-C or the last year which will be considered at 30 semester (45 quarter) hours. A student graduating in June or August will be considered as having met the residency requirement if he has either 135 quarter hours of the last 45 quarter hours at SIU-C.

Paul Simon Congress

An open letter to SIU-C Faculty and Staff:

Thank you for your generous response to my appearances on campus. My reception here throughout this campaign--as in the past--has been most rewarding. I look forward to a long, continuing relationship with Southern Illinois University at Carbondale.

The Primary Election is Tuesday, March 19. I urge each of you to go to the polls that day and, if you feel I am the candidate best qualified to represent Southern Illinois in Congress, vote for me. The 1974 Congressional elections are of vital importance to the future of our nation. The new Congress must act to change the direction of our government--to make it once again responsive to the needs of the people. I want to be a part of that activity, and I invite your support.

Below are the names of some of your fellow faculty and staff members who have endorsed my candidacy. If you would like to get involved in my campaign or if you have any questions, please contact Gene Trani, my coordinator for SIU-C faculty-staff activities.

Sincerely,
Paul Simon

Saluki Stables manager waits for new job

By Eric Schuster
Student Writer

Although the Saluki Stables were officially closed March 1 and the last horses being boarded there have been moved to greener pastures, the manager of the Stables still does not know whether she will be terminated or relocated in another job.

Juanita Young, who has managed the Stables since they were purchased in 1968 by SIU, said Sunday all of the civil service employees and student workers at the Stables have either resigned or been laid off. She said only one civil service employee was relocated in another job.

The stables have operated at a deficit ever since they were opened, and the administration proposed closing them last year to save money. But student volunteers and members of the Saluki Saddle Club collected more than 4,500 signatures to show that students still wanted the stables open.

"The Saluki Stables were never supposed to make money. They were set up as a recreational facility for students. No other stables in this area rented horses for $1.60 an hour," Ms. Young said. Nineteen university-owned horses were moved Feb. 9 to Little Grass Outdoor Laboratory where the University plans to build a barn for them. Ms. Young said the $20,000 to $30,000 cost of a new barn would have kept the old stables open three or four years.

"My idea is that the University wants to close the stables. Outdoor Lab is an educational rather than recreational facility, and for students to use it they must have groups of 10. I think that will limit use of the new stables so much that the University will eventually be forced to sell the horses," Ms. Young said.

Ms. Young said she had applied for a job at the Outdoor Lab, but the work they expected of her would have been impossible for one person. She said the job would involve the complete care—including feeding, grooming, clipping, and administering medicine—of 39 horses. There were already 20 horses at the Outdoor Lab before the stable horses were moved there. Ms. Young said she has many as three civil service employees and five student workers to help her with the 24 horses at the old stables.

The name Outdoor Laboratory was officially changed last month to Touch of Nature. The director of the facility, Jack Leggett, said Ms. Young did apply for the job but turned it down when she learned of the duties involved. He said one person could handle the job, which would save the University money.

When asked how soon the 39 horses at Touch of Nature would be available for group riding, Leggett said the University's lack of funds has delayed opening to students. Leggett declined to give even a tentative opening date. He said members of the Saluki Saddle Club had used the facility in exchange for working with the horses.

The SIU Foundation owns the land, two barns and a house that comprised the old Saluki Stables. Ms. Young has lived at the house for 22 years. She said the stables used to be for show and riding before the University purchased the facilities.

"It would be hard for me to leave here after such a long time, but I feel more sorry for the students who wanted to keep the stables open. For many of them, it was their favorite place to go and relax," Ms. Young said.

Ms. Young is also the sponsor and fiscal officer of the Saluki Saddle Club.

Final Exams Schedule

The 1974 Winter Quarter examination schedule attempts to avoid examination conflicts by providing separate examination periods for Tuesday-Thursday lecture classes. Some questions might develop for which answers can be provided at this time.

1. Classes that meet longer than one hour on Tuesday and Thursday, such as four quarter hour classes, should use the examination period established for the earlier of the hours. (For example, a class meeting from 1:00 to 2:50 on Tuesday and Thursday would hold its examination at 7:50 a.m., Saturday, March 16.)

2. Some classes meeting only on Tuesday and Thursday may not use a lecture instructional technique but do hold final examinations. For example, a laboratory or seminar type class may meet on Tuesday and Thursday from 10:00 to 11:50. Such a class would have its examination at 5:50 p.m. on Thursday, March 14.

3. The space scheduling section of the Office of Admissions and Records will forward to departments information relative to the location for examinations for those classes that cannot hold their examinations in their regularly scheduled rooms because of a space conflict. This will be done sufficiently in advance of the final examination week to provide sufficient notice for all.

The following points are also pertinent relative to the final examination schedule:

1. One and two credit hour courses have their examinations during the last regularly scheduled class period prior to the formal final examination week.

2. A student who finds he has more than three examinations on one day may petition, and a student who has two examinations scheduled at one time should petition his academic dean for approval to take an examination during the make-up examination period on the last day. Provision for such a make-up examination period does not mean that a student may decide to miss his scheduled examination time and expect to make it up during this make-up period. This period is to be used only for a student whose petition has been approved by his dean.

3. A student who must miss a final examination may not take an examination before the time scheduled for the class examination. Information relative to the proper grade to be given a student who misses a final examination and is not involved in a situation covered in the preceding paragraph will be found in the mimeographed memorandum forwarded to members of the instructional staff at the time they receive the final grade listing for the recording of grades.

4. A special note needs to be made relative to examinations for evening sections for those classes which have been granted a special time for examining all sections. As some students attending at night may not be able to attend the special examination period scheduled for the daytime, each department involved will have to arrange special examination periods for such students. This problem involves those night students who are fully employed during the day and who are taking night courses because it is the only time they are able to do so.

DID YOU KNOW

by George Talley

Here's a surprising baseball fact: Did you know that Pete Rose of the Cincinnati Reds has now made more hits in his first 11 years in the big leagues than Ty Cobb did in his first 11 years—and Cobb eventually wound up with more hits than anybody else who ever played baseball! In his first 11 years Cobb had 1,937 hits while Rose has made 2,152.

Did you know that Vice President Gerald Ford once played in the College All Star football game? Ford played on the College All Star team that lost to the Chicago Bears 56 in 1935 after his career as a football player at Michigan.

Here's a baseball oddity: When the great Mickey Vernon was a rookie in 1951, not only did he NOT win the Rookie of the Year Award in the American League—but he was not even voted the best rookie on his own team! That honor that year went to fourth baseman Gil McDougald.

Sixty-five in Karate Club rate belt degree advance

By Mark Reid
Student Writer

Sixty-five members of the SIU Karate Club donned new belt ranks recently after successfully demonstrating their skills before two black belt instructors.

Of the people taking the test, 41 received yellow belts, nine received blue belts, 13 received green and two were advanced to second degree purple.

Vito Rallo, a third degree black belt from Washington, Mo., and Andre McWilliams, a first degree black belt from Mt. Vernon, conducted the promotional examinations.

The testing began with the traditional bowing salute to the sensei (the Japanese term for instructors) after which Rallo told those taking the test for the first time to relax and think of the test as a practice session.

Rallo warned against students becoming "too rank conscious" and said proficiency in karate comes not from the belt a person wears but from the knowledge they possess.

"If I take off my black belt and put on a white one, I still have the same knowledge," Rallo explained.

John Kasky, the club's president and a first degree purple belt, explained the system of ranking in the Shotokan style of karate.

"There are six belts before black," Kasky said. "The ranking goes from white, to yellow, to blue, to green, to two degrees of purple and three degrees of brown."

Kasky also said there were degrees of black, ninth being the highest.

The test requirements for each belt rank follow much the same pattern said McWilliams. The tests begin with a prearranged self defense form called a kata. This is followed by a demonstration of basic blocking, punching and kicking techniques by the student. The final part of the tests consists of defending against an opponent's attack and by counterattacking.

McWilliams said although the different ranks are required to demonstrate similar techniques, the "upper ranks" are expected to exhibit a higher degree of proficiency in their performance.

Sheila McElwee, a yellow belt who was double promoted to green, said she was not as nervous testing this time.

"The last time I was worried about performing as well as everyone else," Ms. McElwee said, "but this time I just wanted to perform as well as I could."

Both Rallo and McWilliams said they were very pleased with the results of the testing. McWilliams, the chief instructor for the club, said the students were progressing rapidly and that this would greatly strengthen the club.

Rallo also said he was impressed by the spirit of the club's members and invited the SIU karate teams to compete in a tournament he is sponsoring in Missouri this spring.

"In my opinion the SIU Karate Club is the best new club in the area," Rallo said.

Maine South, Collinsville favored in AA high school cage tournaments

By The Associated Press

Mighty Maine South, powerful Bloom and perennial contender Collinsville are unanimous favorites to win the Class AA High School sectional tournaments which begin Tuesday night at 14 sites.

Maine South, 23-1, was the No. 1 team in the final Associated Press poll and was picked Monday by all 17 writers and broadcasters in an AP poll to sweep their superspecial at Arlington Heights. Maine South meets Hersey 16-9 in Tuesday's action which also matches Wheeling 18-6 and Evanston 13-9.

Bloom 25-2, ranked third in the last AP poll, also was a unanimous pick to win the Chicago Heights clash where it was paired in opening round action with Thornwood 22-5. Collinsville 22-3, the No. 6 ranked team got all the votes to win its superspecial title at home against Herseyville 20-7 and the winner of the East St. Louis 17-8 — Belleville West 18-9 battle.

Fourth-ranked Freeport 26-1 appeared to be matched in the toughest sectional. Their Tuesday opponent, LaSalle-Peru 22-4, collected one vote to win the tourney, while East Moline 20-4, who is matched in the first game against Rock Falls 24-3, garnered six votes and Rock Falls was picked on two ballots. Freeport was named the winner by eight voters.

Rock Falls was ranked No. 7 and East Moline was eighth in the final AP poll.

Proviso East 21-4 was the choice of 13 voters to win the Hinsdale sectional where LaGrange Lyons 22-4 also is rated strong with four votes.

At the Aurora East Tourneys, Oswego 18-5 conqueror of Aurora East, is a heavy favorite to get by Wheaton Central and handle the winner of the Lisle Benet-Glenbard West contest.

Peoria Richwood 26-1 and Quincy 20-7 each got all but one vote to get through their sectionals at Peoria and Springfield, respectively.

Danville 23-4 and No. 12 in the final AP poll got 14 votes to win its tourney in Kankakee where only Bloomington 19-6 was given an outside chance by pollsters with three votes.

Breese Mater Dei 26-1 and No. 11 in the poll was a solid choice in the West Frankfort sectional.

Lockport 22-5 also as a topheavy favorite—14 votes—to annex the Downers Grove tourney against Oak Lawn in the first round and the winner of the Sandburg-Rich Central contest.

Chicago St. Patrick, No. 14 in the ratings, was picked over Conant, Elgin and St. Charles at Elgin. Waukegan 19-7 was the choice as the host of its sectional against last year's runnerup, New Trier East. Libertyville and Lake Zurich: While Antioch 21-5 got the nod at Rockford over Rockford West, Rockford Guilford and Crystal Lake.

Track team held scoreless in NCAA

By John Morrissey
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

"We are not an indoor track team," SIU track coach Lew Hartzog made a point of saying after SIU's showing in the NCAA Indoor Track and Field Championships Friday and Saturday in Detroit.

Hartzog's point was one more than the SIU team scored in the two-day meet. An official's judgment kept Terry Erickson from qualifying for the 440 finals, and a bump-and-run matchup with Eastern Michigan's leadoff runner knocked Erickson out of the lead to stay in SIU's heat of the mile relay.

When asked what kept Erickson from qualifying in the 440, Hartzog laughed and replied, "Eight other men." Then more seriously, he explained Erickson was one of four runners who qualified in 49.6, and only two spots in the finals were available.

On a plus-minus system of rating qualifiers beyond a tenth of a second, judges put down a 49.6+ for Erickson, and he was edged out by two runners who registered 49.6-. The top qualifying time in 440 prelims was 48.8 by Alfred Daley of Seton Hall. Mike Monroe ran a 51.4 prelim.

In the mile relay, Hartzog said Erickson got out in front of Michigan State and Eastern Michigan, with EMU's Hasely Crawford hugging his shoulder.

On the second lap, the two frontrunners "got their legs tangled up," Hartzog said. Crawford went down and Erickson broke stride.

Erickson then sprinted to catch up with Michigan State but ended up breaking at the end as a result, Hartzog related. Erickson's split was 51.7.

Hartzog said Eddie Sutton did a good job of staying with Michigan State, running 49.0, and Wayne Carmody also stayed with MSU's veteran 600 ace Bob Cassleman on the third leg, although his 49.2 was not enough to pass Cassleman.

"If we were out in front of (MSU's Marshall) Dill, we felt we could beat him," Hartzog said of the anchor between Dill and Lonnie Brown. But Dill kept Brown from passing him on the tight Cobo Arena track and Brown closed with a 50.5 for a seventh-place 3:20.3. MSU finished fourth over-all at 3:17.0.

Hartzog did get some surprise showings in areas he had not counted on heavily. Phil Robins finished sixth in the triple jump finals with an SIU indoor record 51-5 3/4, and Ed Wardzala qualified for the 600 finals with 1:12.4. Wardzala ended up eighth in the finals at 1:14.3.

Hartzog said Wardzala's effort in prelims is the equivalent of a 1:10 on the longer and wider University of Illinois track, scene of most of SIU's indoor success this season.

The high jump field at Detroit numbered an unwieldy 26 entrants, so officials decided to start the bar at 6-10. Bill Hancock was one of the contestants who did not clear the opening height.

Hartzog said he had no regrets about the showing of his team indoors. "I'm still pleased with our indoor season," he pronounced. "The boys did a fine job."

Kty six-time SEC tops

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Kentucky has won the Southeastern Conference basketball title the past six years. Last team other than the Wildcats to win was Tennessee in 1967.

Last unbeaten champion in the SEC was Alabama, a winner of all 14 league games in the 1955-56 season. That season the Crimson Tide had an overall 21-3 record.

Stadium work delays home football start

SIU will play an abbreviated four-game home football schedule this season, according to the 11-game schedule announced Sunday by Athletic Director, Doug Weaver.

A delay in steel delivery has forced the Salukis to switch their first two home games against Indiana State, Sept. 21 and Dayton, Oct. 5 to away contests. The steel is to be delivered as part of the McAndrew Stadium renovation program that will increase permanent seating capacity to 17,500.

"The date of steel delivery was anticipated to have been in April," Weaver said. "Now we're hoping for a July delivery. We will go to work on both sides of the stadium, although the west side might be finished first since there is less steel involved on that side."

The Salukis will open at home Oct. 19 against Northern Illinois following road games at New Mexico State, Indiana State, East Carolina, Dayton and Temple.

SIU will also host Arkansas State, Oct. 26; Northern Michigan, Nov. 9; and Illinois State, Nov. 23. All home games will have a 1:30 p.m. kickoff.

Other road opponents include Long Beach State, Nov. 2 and Central Michigan, Nov. 16.

Sooners stump SIU in mat season closer

The Saluki grapplers finished their dual season with a disappointing 6-12-1 record after the University of Oklahoma Sooners easily handled SIU, 28-11, at Norman over the weekend.

SIU was never in the meet as they dropped the first six matches and trailed, 20-0. Don Stumpf put the first Saluki points on the scoreboard when he drew the Sooner's Jeff Callard, 2-2, in the 167 pound match.

SIU's NCAA tournament hopes were dealt a blow when sophomore, Mark Wiesen injured his left ankle during the first sixteen seconds of his match with the Sooner's Mark Neumann.

Wiesen is listed as a possible for the NCAA Championships scheduled for Thursday-Saturday in Ames, Iowa. Wiesen qualified for the NCAA with a first place finish at the Eastern Regionals in the 177 pound class.

The only winners for SIU against Oklahoma were Wayne Rice at 190 pounds and Joe Harre at heavyweight.

Rice decided the Sooner's Mark Mullins, 5-3 and Harre picked up his second win as a Saluki on a forfeit over Bill Kalkbrenner.

If Wiesen is able to wrestle, he will join teammates Andy Burge and Stumpf in Iowa for the NCAA Championships.

Soccer club meets

The SIU International Soccer Club will hold its spring meeting at 7 p.m. Thursday, March 28 in Activities Room B of the Student Center. Interested persons are urged to attend.

The season's schedule and election of new officers will be discussed. The team's first game will be April 6 against Blackburn University at home.

The club has also announced it will hold a practice session at 4 p.m. Wednesday in McAndrew Stadium.
